Not illustrated. 1873 Excerpt: ...is given to have it told. The law directs proof to be given of the means of the debtor and obedience to the law is the duty of all persons and especially in the giving of evidence. The truth must be made known even when Members of Parliament may desire to be obstinately silent. If the amount of a mans wages is sought to be known it is not in order to injure him but to protect him from the suspension of his daily work. Mr Hyslop, Mayor of Newcastle-under-Lyne, who gave most instructive evidence, was asked by Mr Anderson, M.P. (4,764), You do not think the manufacturers would be entitled to say: What my men earn is confidential between them and me and you have nothing to do with it? He might.--And.do you not think that would be a most proper answer to make? I do not think so. I do not take that view of it. This was an honest answer. 4759. You have suggested that employers are quite willing to give information with regard to the amount of wages that their men earn, or that if they were not they ought to be? I never knew a case where an employer refused to give that information.--You said that you thought they ought to do it? Yes, if the question is fairly put, I do not believe there is a large employer in the neighbourhood who would refuse to give you that information.-- You suggest that the employer of workmen should tell any respectable person who chose to ask what they earned? I think if you applied to a respectable firm, and gave the reason for doing so, not one firm out of the hundreds in our neighbourhood would refuse to give you that information. In the case of Horsnail v. Bruce, L/R. 8; O.P. 378 May 9,1873, a very important decision was
